MrDoob – a spanish guy that calls himself a "non-creative award-losing junior developer" has created a pretty good HTML5 + JQuery page that may look like Google's home page but…

Google Gravity is one project among several others that show some impressive development abilities.

Best viewed with Google Chrome browser, Google Gravity works fine even with Firefox (6.x on my Mac) and gives a dramatic, falling experience with Google search page.
The page is fully working even when crashed, so are the SERPs links and so on…

This is what happened to me when searched and crashed by Google Gravity…

Tip: ask your friends to search for Google Gravity on Google and click on the first result

Check his page and his Twitter too!