

TL;DR – Summarize (quickly) any article or text with ChatGPT

You use ChatGPT on a daily basis.
You already use it to summarize long text and articles.
You can now just ask ChatGPT to cut it short with one simple command that's quite well-suited for the task: TLDR.

If you just type a prompt like this:

tldr https://www.boringnews.yawn/really_long_and_boring_article

ChatGPT will go straight to the point with an abstract of the long/boring article.

Of course, the same goes if you type this prompt:

tldr "really long and boring text here"

where you can paste any text from your computer.

If you're asking why TLDR, well it stands for Too long; Didn't Read.
By the way: it does not apply to this post.
