

#Drones in the future (according to New York Magazine)

Aptly titled “Drones and everything after”, this long article by Benjamin Wallace-Wells featured in the latest issue of NYMag is an excellent compendium of ‘drone experiences’ around the US and the world alike.

Several real-world examples are given about how much and to what extent are drones entering our lives and giving support, relief, bringing war, information and fun - altogether. Be it just to shoot amazing videos from unseen point-of-views, or to monitor crop growing and plant seeding, be it as a weapon or as just a toy - getting less expensive every day, drones are getting the spot of media and are becoming common presence around us.

Recommended, original NYMag article can be found here.